In an Ocean not very far away,
Dolphin, Penguin and Turtle lived with their families
happily and care-free.

One day, a huge ship, without realising, lost tons and tons of plastic... Unfortunately, the plastic harmed many of our friends. Slowly, slowly the plastic was taking over the ocean, making their lives difficult and impossible: they could no longer swim, eat or play like they did before.

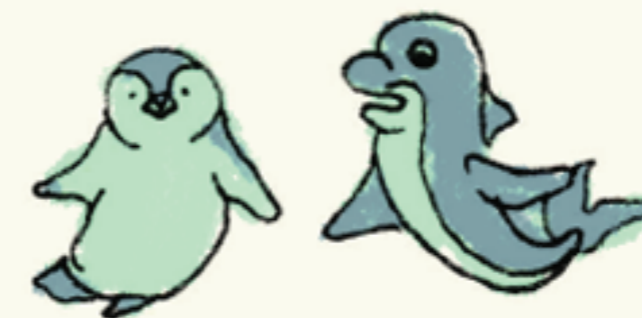

Their wise parents decided that for a while it would be best for everybody to stay in their own homes.

This startled all of our friends, so, together, they decided to plan an escape so that they could return to play in their beloved ocean.

However, once they escaped, Turtle decided to challenge fate and swim to the part of the ocean which was contaminated with plastic.

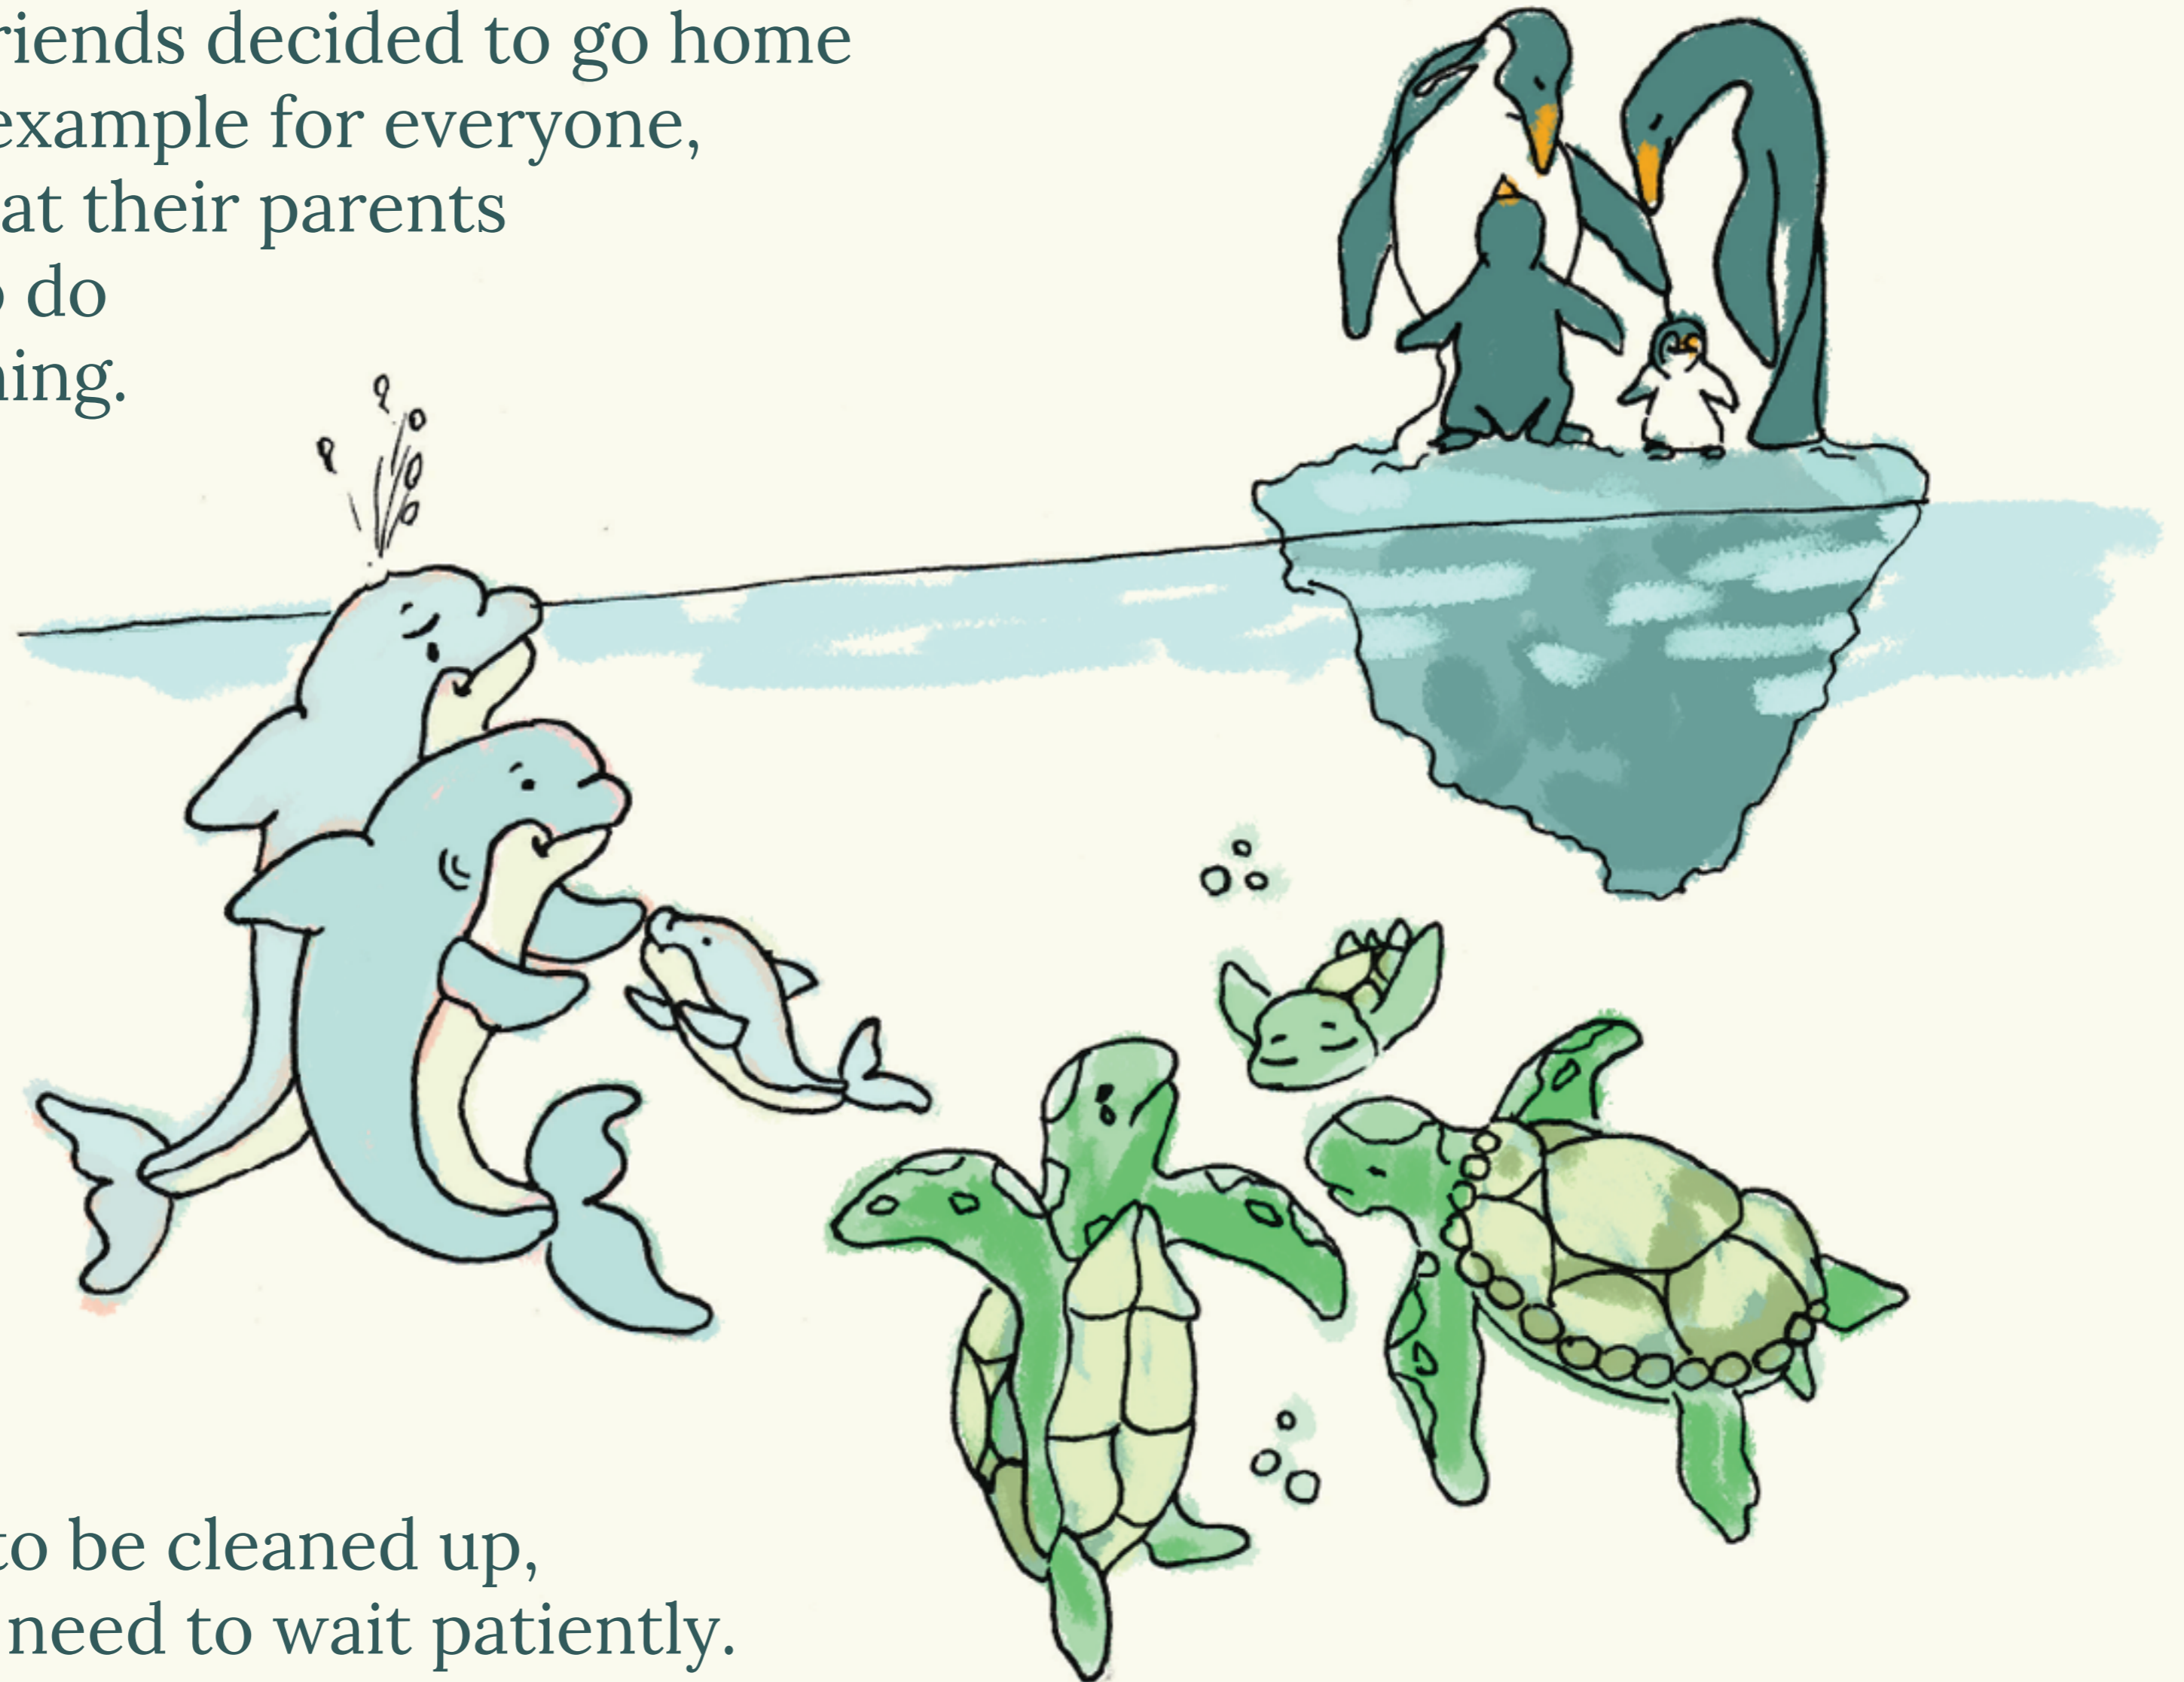

What he saw, was shocking: fish, corals and other friends were trapped, with plastic wrapped around them, which meant they couldn't breathe properly...

just as their parents had told them!

After telling Dolphin and Penguin what he had seen, Turtle and his friends decided to go home and set a good example for everyone, by following what their parents advised them to do from the beginning.

The ocean had to be cleaned up, and they would need to wait patiently.

Now they were alone at home.

How could they pass their time away from each other, without getting bored?

Hey!
But there is something lucky in all of this: we are at home with our families!

So our friends began to think of ways to stay in contact, to share both the bad and beautiful things.

After many attempts, they decided that every day, they would create a personal list of things to do with their mums, dads and siblings, for the delivery fish to collect and send to all of their friends. This way, they would always have new ideas to share.

*Wise, strong and generous fish.
He holds the joy of all the children
in his heart, and travels fast to unite them all.*

In doing so, not only did they feel the distance much less, but they began to feel closer than ever, as they were in this new adventure together.

Working as a team, it became easier for them to imagine being together, embraced in a big hug full of understanding, joy and love!

After this adventure, they would never be the same as before... they would come back even better!

Let's share our ideas!

What would you do? What are you doing?
What will you do with your family?

Design the characters in 'The Delivery Fish' story and tell us about your experience at home.

How do you feel?
What are you doing to pass the time?
Share your ideas with all the children in Italy,
who are experiencing
the same situation as you.

Let's meet where our imagination takes us...There'll be many of us there!

A hand-drawn illustration of an open envelope, tilted slightly to the right. The envelope is light brown with dark outlines. The top flap is open, revealing text written in black and blue ink. The text is a request for designs and a to-do list to be sent via email to a specific address, with a promise that the items will be distributed to families across Italy.

Send your to-do list and designs of Dolphin, Penguin and Turtle to the following e-mail pesce.corriere@gmail.com and we will send it to every family across Italy!
